

Your Friday Water Report

This Week's Topic:

Prevent Freezing Pipes

As you ready your house for the colder months ahead, don't forget about your water system.

When water freezes, it expands. So if the temperature of your pipes drops below 32 degrees, even for a short period, you run the risk of a pipe fracture or worse. Take precautions now to avoid a major headache later. Make sure pipes are well-insulated, close crawl space vents and stuff insulation over the openings. A bathroom or laundry room located above or next to a garage can be particularly vulnerable, so keep the garage door closed to maintain maximum heat. Finally, never turn off the heat when you leave home during the winter. Instead, set the temperature to at least 55 degrees F. If you have multiple heat zones, be sure to adjust all thermostats appropriately.
